

How being involved in APNA's NIPHC program (2018-2022) can benefit your Primary Health Network?

We are inviting PHNs' support and engagement in APNA's following projects:

- Transition to Practice Program
- Building Nurse Capacity project (formerly the Enhanced Nurse Clinics project)
- Chronic Disease Management and Healthy Ageing workshops

All three projects are designed to increase the contribution of nurses in care delivery; promote models of care that support nurses working to their full scope of practice; and support and promote nurse-delivered (team-based) models of care that are relevant to local patient population needs.

The projects benefit PHNs in many ways including through:

Improving PHN population health targets

- innovative, accessible, affordable and evidence-based clinical care, tailored to local needs
- improved health outcomes for patients through use of nurse-delivered (team-based) models of care
- high-performing, collaborative teams – nurses working to their full scope of practice are confident, proactive and deliver high-quality care
- Set up systems to improve in screening rates, early disease detection or indicators of sound chronic disease management and/or healthy ageing in patients and target populations.

Enhancing your reputation

- boosting your profile and helping build stronger networks and relationships with your stakeholders and health professionals
- establishing your reputation as an innovative, supportive, forward-thinking PHN.

Helping you meet your workforce KPIs

- reducing time and effort spent on workforce development and meeting PHN KPIs around professional development and support
- providing a cost-effective method of providing support to your workforce.
